Hemerocallis

TWO SPECIES of Hemerocallis or Daylily have been widely known to gardeners for generations. Flava, the Lemon Lily, and Fulva Europa, the reddish orange Wayside Lily, were brought to this country by early settlers. In recent years great strides have been made in hybridizing, with amazing results, so that today it is possible to obtain a collection of Hemerocallis which will give a succession of bloom from Spring until Fall, with colors ranging from the most delicate pale yellow through orange red, maroon tones and brown. There are also the most subtle and exquisite shades of peach, pink and rose. One of the outstanding characteristics of the Daylily is its extreme hardiness and sturdy habit of growth. No insect or disease has been known to injure it and any location suits it except extreme shade. When it is established it is hardy anywhere.

Naturalizing the Daylily

Gardeners are becoming increasingly interested in Daylilies as material for naturalizing since they lend themselves well to this type of planting. Their hardiness, attractive foliage and the fact that they require so little care, make it possible to use them effectively in locations unsuited to other perennials.

Hybrid Daylilies for this purpose can be supplied unlabeled but varieties packed separately at $15.00 per hundred, fifty at the hundred rate.
